NOVEL SUIT OVER SPRING GUN VICTIM

Slain By a Trap Gun, Wife of Collins Wants Owner to Pay the Damages.

JONESVILLE, VA., May 10.—Circuit Court, which convened here last Monday, has disposed of several important suits.

The damage suit of M. O. Combs against Pennington Lumber Company resulted in a judgment in favor of Combs for $15,243. Combs sued for $10,000 for breach of a lumber contract.

In the case of Mahaffey's administrator against the Keokee Coal and Coke Company, which was a suit for damages for fatal injury in a mine, on demurrer to evidence, the jury rendered a conditional verdict for $3,000, but the court sustained the demurrer and gave judgment in favor of the company. In the case of J. A. Head against the same company, the jury rendered conditional verdict, on demurrer, for $3,100, and the court sustained demurrer and gave judgment in favor of the company. The latter suit was for personal injury received in a mine.

The most novel case on the docket was that of Kiser, administrator of Millard Collins, against L. J. Wilson, which was continued until next term. Wilson is the owner of a ginseng garden, situated near Ben Hur and remote from his residence. The garden had been robbed once or twice, and Wilson procured spring guns and planted three or four in the garden so that any person entering the garden would strike wires attached to the guns and discharge them, with fatal results. Millard Collins, who lived in Wise county, together with another man, went to get ginseng, and was shot and killed almost immediately after entering. His body was not found for some ten days afterwards, when his wife came to Lee county enquiring about him, she having been informed by the man who was with him that he had been shot in a trap near Ben Hur. The suit was brought for $2,000 damages for the death. The plaintiff claims that Collins became lost and wandered into the garden at night by mistake.

WILL WELCOME MOVEMENT.

Male Sex Can Be Counted on to Indorse Abolition of Washing and Scrubbing.

Mrs. Tillinghast of Titusville pre-announced this conundrum to the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women at a recent meeting:

"What effect, think you, will an endless round of cleaning and scrubbing, washing and ironing have upon a human soul? How far toward the ideal in moral and spiritual development will such a soul be able to advance?"

The effect of these things upon a human soul, if it be the soul of a man, is altogether detrimental. If a man comes home during the progress of spring cleaning and finds his books all dusted and misplaced in the bookcase, his slippers hid carefully away where he cannot find them, the book he was reading concealed behind a row of volumes on the upper shelf, his papers all gone, buckets of suds here and there for him to fall into when he trips over the broom handles that have been so placed as to entrap him, pieces of soap cunningly disposed on the floor so that he will place his foot upon them and slip, he will be apt to say things which will damage his soul and shock his family. It is not hard to answer this conundrum proposed by Mrs. Tillinghast of Titusville. The effect upon the human soul of cleaning and scrubbing is ruinous. And when the man with the soul gets up in the early morning and disposes his bare foot upon the carpet tack, so placed with the business end pointing to heaven that he will be sure to step upon it, the ruin of that soul is accomplished. There is not a man within the four seas who will not arise promptly and with zeal to second the motion of Mrs. Tillinghast of Titusville to abolish scrubbing and cleaning.

PANAMA GOOD OBJECT LESSON

All Nations Will Profit by the Sanitary Standard Set by Great Undertaking.

The building of the Panama canal and the sanitary record of the Japanese in their war with Russia are the two great object lessons of recent years, demonstrating that men can neither work nor fight to the best advantage unless protected from infectious and preventable diseases.

The civilized nation which will hereafter put an army in the field or undertake a great engineering problem without first preparing the way by adequate sanitary engineering and equipment will be regarded by the other nations, says the Medical News, as quite as foolish as a government which would build a vast fleet of modern warships and then arm them with muzzle-loading ordnance of 100 years ago.

An epidemic of typhoid fever in a military camp should be considered a greater disgrace to an army than a defeat in battle since defeat may come in spite of the greatest exertions and the highest wisdom, while typhoid and yellow fever would be the result of ignorance or disregard of well-known laws of prevention. All nations will profit by the sanitary lesson of the Panama canal.

The scourge of yellow fever against which the French struggled in vain, has not been there since May, 1906, although it exists at several points to the north and south of the canal zone. Bubonic plague has not appeared since August, 1905, but that disease also has broken out not far away. No case of smallpox has been reported during the year.

Freckled on One Side.

For years this particular young woman had been troubled every spring by having her face decorated by a coat of "perfectly awful" freckles just as soon as the sun began to put on its customary vernal power. She made up her mind recently to beat Old Sol by staying indoors, and arranged to do a lot of family sewing, not so much as a Lenten penance as to overcome the desire to sally forth into the streets. So for the entire six days she remained alone at home in her apartment while her mother was away, sitting at the window, always with one side of her head to the sunlight. When her mother returned the first thing the old lady did was to exclaim: "Why, Ellen!" The daughter sighed. "Yes, mother," she said. "Old Sol got in his fine work as far as he could. One side of my face is a mass of freckles."

Legends of Wallenstein.

It was reported that he had ordered an officer to be put to death for appearing at his levee with the clank of spurs, and that he had hung a valet de chambre for presuming to wake him without orders. It was said that his palace was built on the ruins of a hundred houses, that his stables were of the most sumptuous description, that each horse had a rack and manger of polished steel, and that the stalls were divided by intercolumnia—stalls were divided by intercolumnia—Davenport Adams.

Honesty.

"Your honor," exclaimed the lawyer for the defense, "we retained that witness and here he is shamelessly testifying for the state."
"You may explain," remarked the court severely.
"I regarded the money paid by the defense as an option only," said the witness. "The other side made a better bid, and the option expired."
"Well, we'll get our money back, that's all," rejoined the lawyer, hotly. —Philadelphia Public Ledger.
